The hotel...?

When did we get back?

I should be asleep...

ONE MANGA!

BL

About this room...

Yes?

Will I be spending the night in the same room as Kulkul?

Yes, I hear that is how it's always been.

So we've booked a single bedroom for you...

Is... is there only one bed in that room?

No. Since it's a Royal room, there should be a guest room as there, as well.

We'll be in the room right next to yours.

Page 2

I don't sleep.

no real sleep.

He-That's...

Why did I do that?

It's strange.

I have a funny feeling
in my stomach.

I can't look Kairaki
in the eye.

I should go to sleep...

LONE MAN

Katoko... I can walk...

A dark, atmospheric scene. At the top center, a bright blue light source, possibly a screen or a window, glows with a soft, ethereal light. Below it, the dark, shadowed interior of a room is visible. In the center of the floor, there is a bright, circular light source, possibly a lamp or a reflection, which illuminates the surrounding dark surface. The overall mood is mysterious and contemplative.

「I know。」

Do you remember the scriptures?

One day, a Miraga Beast possessing three eyes took on a form similar to that of humans

and became the progenitor of all Ryenda.

That Miraga Beast held a desire to walk alongside the strongest and most beautiful beings in the world.

In order to become a Ryenda,

One must possess strong desires.

By one with the strongest desire...

shall be chosen by the Dragon.

THE

ANGEL

Dragons are
"Beings that Decide."

Yes. If you touch on their "territory,"
they can turn on their Kiyomasa at any time.

That's why
the Elders have been so persistent.

Even before
the war, a Kiyomasa fellow that also had a contract with a Dragon Architect

In order to be "chosen," one must fulfill
a contract requirement of some sort.

However, that Dragon called Kairak.

He approached her first

Are you suggesting that a Dragon wants to be...

「chosen」 by a human?!

If that's true, then wouldn't that be the reason why he chose her as his Elyenara???

That's probably right...

*That's impossible!
Dragons are beings
that never interfere with others, aren't they?!*

Why would he go as far as appeal to her...?

That human was looking for a memory among many, wasn't she?

However, she became a Kamen before that... I thought it was strange.

Karen probably missed this point because the Dragon didn't change in the Labrynth or the Forest of Mirages.

No. Actually, she's only good at working, so she probably didn't notice it the whole time...

[He chose a being without desire as his Kiyomoto.]

What more proof do we need?

[ONE MORE]

If we make him the basis of our theory as the first developing Dragon recorded in history...

Developing Dragons
are incomplete beings.
As such,

[they can change.]

The moment they mature, they become [bond.]

If that young Dragon happens to mature while sleeping the frangi

we'll forever have a Dragon that despises
the frangi.

Isn't that a bit of a stretch?

You're probably confused because you've never seen a developing Dragon...

I told you, it's just a theory.

Even as a theory,
it's something! Didn't you know that would hold power?

However, if my theory is correct...

It will be impossible to obtain the position in the Myriad of Dragon Knights.

Because he gave that to the knight, Eclair, as proof of his devotion,

His [Inheritance] is probably linked to that.

But why? What is that human to him?

"Desire" used in this chapter could also mean a yearning or a lust for something.
